What is the Point of Government?

The Game

• If all of you choose A then you will get 10 points toward your final grade

The Game

- If all of you choose A then you will get 10 points toward your final grade
- If one of you chooses B then that person gets 50 points toward their final grade

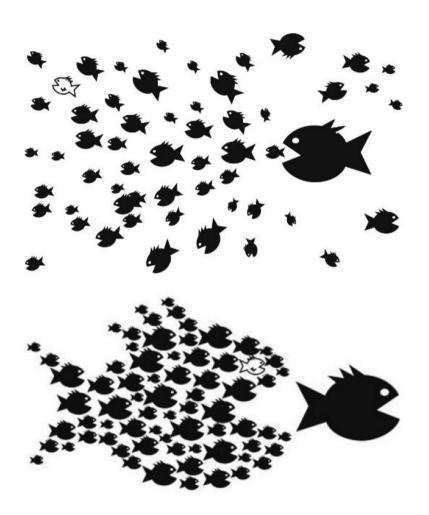

The Game

- If all of you choose A then you will get 10 points toward your final grade
- If one of you chooses B then that person gets 50 points toward their final grade
- But the class gets no points
- If more than two people choose B than the class gets no points

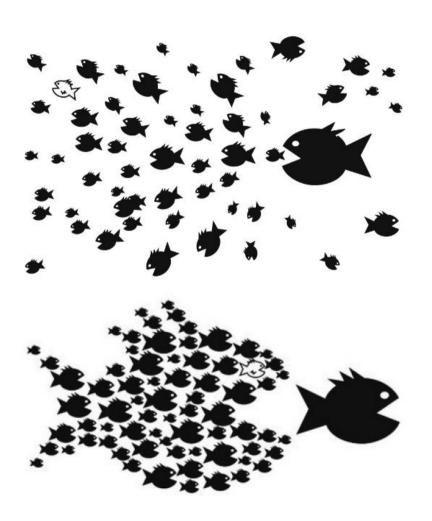

The Prisoners Dilemma

- To understand the purpose of government we have to start with the prisoners dilemma
- Basically the goal of the game is to maximize the number of points

The Collective Action Problem

multiple individuals would benefit from a certain action, but this action has a cost that makes it implausible that any individual can or will undertake and solve it alone -Olson

Enter Government

• Cooperation is hard as we have seen

Enter Government

- Cooperation is hard as we have seen
- To entice people to cooperate we have to offer people selective incentives
- This is where government comes in

Selective Incentives

What Are They?

Negative (Sticks)

- Fines
- Imprisonement

Positive (Carrots)

- Payements
- tax credits

Get to the Point

- Governments ultimately provide what are known as public goods
- Public Goods have two components
 - 1. Non-Rivalrious
 - 2. Non-Excludable

Problems

Economic Systems

Capitalism

State Socialism

Book Definition

Command Economy

State socialists believe market capitalism necessarily results in too much economic inequality and in oppressive relationships between workers and the owners of capital. Mainstream Americans believe market capitalism, properly harnessed, can be an engine of prosperity for everyone and that government ownership of the means of production concentrates too much power in the hands of government

State Socialism

Command Economy

The state owns and controls most of the factors of production, including land and capital goods. The state also engages in central planning. Production of goods and services, as well as their prices and distribution, are centrally controlled by the state.

Democratic Socialism

• It's in the news a lot but what is it?

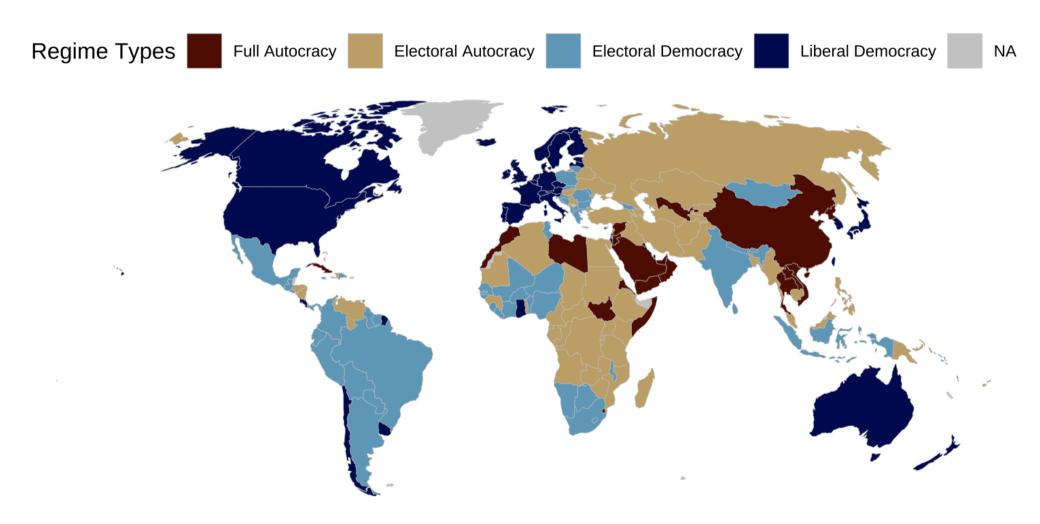

Democratic Socialism

• It's in the news a lot but what is it?

Demcracy

Direct Democracy: "pure" democracy - one in which the people make the decisions in the manner in which political powers should be exercised.

Representative democracy – where the authority of the governments lies with the people (the electorate) that elect representatives to support their interests

Constitutional Democracy

Governments, like the United States, that are effectively bound by fundamental laws are called "constitutional governments."

- Rule of Law: The idea that all citizens, including government officials, are bound by laws
- Fundamental law: The federal government is bound by the laws declared in the Constitution.
 If a statute is in conflict with the law of the constitution, then the statute is considered unlawful.
